Manager, Global Airports Business Operations
Seattle, WA

This role will drive strategic alignment across airports teams globally. You will help drive alignment on strategic initiatives, execute on global projects, deep dive with teams that need additional support to grow the airports business globally. Based in Seattle, but working with teams across the world, this role will provide critical business insights to help identify, quantify, and enable teams to improve the rider experience on these critical trips for customers. This role will drive visibility into the health of Uber at airports, creating strategic frameworks to prioritize resourcing and drive growth. Leveraging deep analytical experience from challenging environments in the past, this person will deep dive on challenging strategic problems and push forward on key initiatives in the airports division. If you love finding truth and insight into tough, unstructured problems and working with senior leaders in the organization to bring those insights into meaningful change, this role is for you.

Strategic Operations Manager, Rideshare Operations
Santa Monica, CA

Operations Managers are responsible for developing functional business strategies, such as how we balance our marketplace, target and deploy customer promotions, manage local markets and identify operational weaknesses. They balance improving or innovating new processes with setting and delivering on core goals to meet business needs.

Manager, Account Management–Uber Health
San Francisco, CA

The Manager of Uber Health Account Management owns the success over a large portfolio of accounts and growing their revenue impact on the business. They create alignment across functional teams and fully understand the levers that drive key performance metrics. They are expected to create operational efficiency amongst their team, set and implement strategic initiatives, and demonstrate strong management and team development capabilities.

Special Projects Program Manager–Ridesharing
New York, NY

As a Special Projects Program Manager for the Uber Rides CommOps team, you will be responsible for leading complex, cross-functional projects across a slew of diverse subject matters and lines of business. In addition to project management, you will also have a strong hand in tracking/managing internal budgets, overseeing bi-annual team-wide strategy/planning, and internal team analysis/reporting across all lines of the US&C Rides CommOps business (Rider, Driver, Loyalty, Payments).
